

2012-2013 Teaching American History

Extended Common Core Social Studies Lesson Plan Template

Lesson Title: Socrates Prosecution: Just or Unjust

Author Name: Frank Rivas

Contact Information: [Email: fmrvivas@washoeschools.net Phone: 775-527-0906]

Appropriate for Grade Level(s): 6th Grade and Above

History Standard(s)/Applicable CCSS(s):

CCSS.ELA-Literacy.RH.6-8.1 Cite specific textual evidence to support analysis of primary and secondary sources.

CCSS.ELA-Literacy.RH.6-8.2 Determine the central ideas or information of a primary or secondary source; provide an accurate summary of the source distinct from prior knowledge or opinions.

CCSS.ELA-Literacy.RH.6-8.6 Identify aspects of a text that reveal an author's point of view or purpose (e.g., loaded language, inclusion or avoidance of particular facts).

CCSS.ELA-Literacy.RI.6.8 Trace and evaluate the argument and specific claims in a text, distinguishing claims that are supported by reasons and evidence from claims that are not

CCSS.ELA-Literacy.W.6.1a Introduce claim(s) and organize the reasons and evidence clearly.

CCSS.ELA-Literacy.W.6.1b Support claim(s) with clear reasons and relevant evidence, using credible sources and demonstrating an understanding of the topic or text.

Engagement Strategy: Students will activate prior knowledge based on the previous lesson on MLK Jr. Letter from a Birmingham Jail. In the letter he described the difference between just and unjust laws. That lesson provides the link between modern and ancient issues as they relate to societies cultural beliefs on laws and peoples rights. Students will also activate prior knowledge on Greece and Socrates. This lesson will allow them to explore this ancient society more closely.]

Student Readings (list):

The Apology by Daniel Marrow

Socrates Trial and Execution was Completely Justified, Says New Study by By Simon Johnson

Total Time Needed: 2 hours and 30 minutes]

Lesson Outline:

Time Frame (e.g. 15 minutes)	What is the teacher doing?	What are students doing?
10	Question: According to MLK Jr. What was the definition of a Just and Unjust law? Question: Explain who Socrates was.	Group/Whole-Group Discussion/Answer
5	Introduce Assignment: The Apology	Listen to Instructions
60	Informally Assess Student work	Students are reading The Apology . They are circling words, phrases which answer the question. Was the prosecution of Socrates Just or Unjust?
	“	They will be working in groups to discuss the evidence found and debate its quality as it pertains to answering the question.
	Teacher will check on students and scaffold if	Students will Keep or Junk their evidence.

The pages that follow the Lesson Plan Template include: student readings (sources) and questions, assignment sheet, model essay and rubric, self-assessment/reflection.

	necessary. Reiterate that their evidence supports the question.
	Teacher will monitor student work and scaffold if necessary.	Students will sort the evidence and place it under 3 specific categories of their choosing.
	Teacher will monitor class, making sure students are writing complete sentences, and restating their question.	Students will then complete their summative assessment. The Lesson Summary worksheet. Students will write the Claim, and state the evidence. Additionally they will put it together as they answer the question using their evidence.
10	Class Discussion: Review the claims and evidence on The Apology . Students will review from their graphic organizer.	Group/Whole-Group Discussion/Answer
5	Introduce Assignment: Socrates Trial and Execution was Completely Justified, Says New Study .	Teacher explains that every argument has two sides. They will look at another point of view contrary to Platos account of Socrates' prosecution.
60	Informally Assess Student work	Students are reading , Socrates Trial and Execution was Completely Justified, Says New Study . They are circling words, phrases which answer the question. Was the prosecution of Socrates Just or Unjust?
	"	They will be working in partners to discuss the evidence found and debate its quality as it pertains to answering the question.
	Teacher will check on students and scaffold if necessary. Reiterate that their evidence supports the question.	Students will Keep or Junk their evidence.
	Teacher will monitor student work and scaffold if necessary.	Students will sort the evidence and place it under 3 specific categories of their choosing.
	Teacher will monitor class, making sure students are writing complete sentences, and restating their question.	Students will then complete their summative assessment. The Lesson Summary worksheet. Students will write the Claim, and state the evidence. Additionally they will put it together as they answer the question using their evidence.
10	Class Discussion: Review the claims and evidence on Socrates Trial and Execution was Completely Justified, Says New Study	Group/Whole-Group Discussion

Description of Lesson Assessment: Students will be assessed both with formative and summative assessment. Teacher will observe student discussion, looking for student evidence of using the text to answer the question "Was the prosecution of Socrates Just or Unjust?" Teacher will also observe students sorting evidence into meaningful categories. Students will be asked to summarize the lesson. They will summarize the claim, and list the evidence into complete sentences. The students will also answer the lesson question using evidence to support their answer. This will give the teacher a summative assessment of the student understanding of the lesson.

How will students reflect on the process and their learning? [Students will reflect on their learning through the prior knowledge portion of the activity. They will summarize their learning through their formative assessment. Additionally, they will share their learning and the process it took them to get there through whole group reflection on the lesson.]

The pages that follow the Lesson Plan Template include: student readings (sources) and questions, assignment sheet, model essay and rubric, self-assessment/reflection.

Extended Discussion/Writing Lesson Plan Template

Lesson Title: Socrates: Just or Unjust

Author Name: Frank Rivas

Contact Information: [Email: fmrvivas@washoeschools.net Phone: 775-527-0906]

Appropriate for Grade Level(s): 6th

US History Standard(s)/

CCSS(s):

CCSS.ELA-Literacy.RH.6-8.1 Cite specific textual evidence to support analysis of primary and secondary sources.

CCSS.ELA-Literacy.RH.6-8.2 Determine the central ideas or information of a primary or secondary source; provide an accurate summary of the source distinct from prior knowledge or opinions. CCSS.ELA-Literacy.RH.6-8.6 Identify aspects of a text that reveal an author's point of view or purpose (e.g., loaded language, inclusion or avoidance of particular facts).

CCSS.ELA-Literacy.RI.6.8 Trace and evaluate the argument and specific claims in a text, distinguishing claims that are supported by reasons and evidence from claims that are not. CCSS.ELA-Literacy.W.6.1a Introduce claim(s) and organize the reasons and evidence clearly. CCSS.ELA-Literacy.W.6.1b Support claim(s) with clear reasons and relevant evidence, using credible sources and demonstrating an understanding of the topic or text.

Discussion Question(s): Was the Prosecution of Socrates Just or Unjust? Explain.

Discussion Engagement Strategy: Keep It or Junk it, Partner Investigation, Whole Class Discussion

Student Readings/sources (list):

The Apology by Daniel Marrow

Socrates Trial and Execution was Completely Justified, Says New Study by By Simon Johnson

Description of student writing assignment and criteria/rubric used for assessment of student writing: Students will write an argumentative essay. Students will be given their writing prompt: Based on the two different viewpoints on the Trial of Socrates please state and explain the claim you feel is stronger and state the counter claim and its evidence.

Total Time Needed: 2 1-hour sessions and 1 ½ hour session

Lesson Outline:

Time Frame (e.g. 15 minutes)	What is the teacher doing?	What are students doing?
5 min.	Teacher prompts students to get out student readings.	Get both readings out.
10-15 min.	Teacher prompts students to discuss the claims, evidence, and reasoning from both readings. (students discuss at their tables, then whole-group)	Students alternate expressing their claims, evidence and reasoning in their groups, then share out as a whole-group.
5-10 min.	Teacher prompts students to argue which articles claim was stronger.	Students argue over which claim is stronger in their groups and then share out as a whole group.

The pages that follow the Lesson Plan Template include: student readings (sources) and questions, assignment sheet, model essay and rubric, self-assessment/reflection.

5 min.	Teacher discusses their writing lesson and reviews the rubric.	Students review writing prompt and rubric. Ask questions if necessary.
30 min.	Teacher gives students time to research, and write a skeleton structure(pre-write) of their essay	Students will research using their readings and develop their arguments. They will create a skeleton structure which they use to organize their essay. Students ask for clarification if necessary.
1 hr.	Teacher gives students time to write their final draft using the rubric as a guide.	Students write their final draft.
15 min.	Teacher gives students time to read their essay and to self-assess.	Students reread their essay and score their own work on the rubric. They then hand the essay in to teacher.
	Teacher reads and grades essays and grade and combines student and teacher scores.

Include the model essay for the writing assignment, which uses the sources and criteria students will be using for their writing assignment.

Model Essay

Socrates: Argumentative Writing

By Frank Rivas

“...the Greeks invented democracy, but it was not democracy as we know it...” The trial of Socrates has long been viewed as a travesty, a sham on the stain of Athenian justice. Socrates was charged with “impiety” and for “corrupting the youth” (Johnson, 2009) and was sentenced to death by drinking the poison hemlock. However, as Simon Johnson states the democracy that we know and love was not the same everywhere, even if it did come from the birthplace of democracy, Greece. I believe that Johnsons article which states that the prosecution of Socrates was just, provided stronger evidence than the article from Daniel Marrow which gave the account of Plato, Socrates disciple, which described his prosecution as unjust. However, in true Socratic fashion, could they both be correct?

The article by Johnson’s claimed that the prosecution of Socrates was absolutely just! His strongest evidence comes from the fact that Ancient Greece’s’ democracy was different from our own, thus making their laws unrecognizable to us (Johnson, 2009). To us how could the fact that a man openly criticizing his leaders and practicing his religious and philosophical beliefs be so bad? According to Johnson and his understanding of Athenian Law, that was pretty much the worst thing that a citizen of Greece could do. The Greek deities were a very important part of their culture. Socrates was a little ahead of his time by questioning the legitimacy and authority of these gods. This very public questioning of the gods caused many citizens to be concerned especially when Athens experienced a series of disasters, such as plagues and military defeats, which they believed were brought upon by Socrates (Johnson, 2009). During this time period Socrates’ methods were too radical for them. Socrates forced the Athenian politicians to act, to serve and protect the “communal good” of its citizens (and themselves). It was in the public’s interests to remove Socrates from society, and cleanse their city of his impious actions. Socrates was a man ahead of his time, and thus challenged the culture of his society in particular its laws and beliefs in their gods. Johnson outlined these reasons as its justification for Socrates execution.

The pages that follow the Lesson Plan Template include: student readings (sources) and questions, assignment sheet, model essay and rubric, self-assessment/reflection.

The counter-claim of Socrates' execution came from author Daniel Marrow as told from the account of Plato, his former student. Marrows' article claims that the prosecution of Socrates was unjust and that he was prevented from achieving "philosophical virtue" (Marrow, 2008) by corrupt officials who were afraid of his teachings. Socrates sought to improve the life and culture of the people of Athens by looking towards improving their morality and virtue, instead of seeking "wealth, power" (Marrow, 2008). The main argument of The Apology was the fact that Socrates chose to stand up for the noblest of causes, living life to its fullest by seeking to make one's life complete through seeking justice and truth. If seeking to live life like this, why would Socrates apologize? He knew that dying for this reason was not only the right thing to do in fact the noblest cause, virtue. It was morally wrong to be asked to stop living life exploring all it has to hold, simply to save his own life. Socrates knew that this request was made in an effort to debunk his philosophy and teachings. And in doing so, he knew that he would elevate the study of philosophy and in dying for that cause it will survive and live on in his pupils. Marrows article argued that there was no justification for his prosecution. It was simply a means to end the culture of studying life by questioning how people can change themselves and society to improve their virtue, justice and truth, the very things that were stripped from Socrates.

The articles of Johnson and Marrow offered opposing viewpoints on the prosecution of Socrates. In order to differentiate which claim is correct one must debate the evidence. While Marrows account of Socrates discusses his lifelong quest to seek philosophical virtue, the study of what is morally right, is honorable and just in its own right. One of our democracies most cherished right is the right to think, say and preach what we feel to be truth...or not. Johnson's article states that we must not judge all democracies alike, even the birthplace of that form of government. We have to understand that Athens democracy was very young and it did not function as our American government does. Socrates lived under their laws and their culture. Therefore, he was obligated to abide by their rules and laws. This reasoning by Johnson is the strongest piece of evidence which justified Socrates' prosecution. In addition, Socrates philosophy of cross-examining other people about their virtue, led him to openly criticizing prominent Athenian officials (Johnson, 2009). This open criticism brought negative attention to his teachings, which served counterproductive to his work, so much so that charges were filed against him. However, this doesn't mean that his thinking was wrong. Morally one should be able to study life and ask the questions necessary to improve our life, our virtue. We could look at it two ways. Socrates could have lived during the wrong time, when thoughts like his seemed too dangerous to Athens. The charges of corrupting the young, and atheism were unfounded, so much in fact that he was made a scapegoat for unfortunate events in Athens (Johnson, 2009). These facts seem unjust to us but during this time, Socrates radical philosophy had to have been the cause for their misfortune! The hand was forced upon the leaders of Athens to protect their people, as well as help them remove an unwanted pest. It was all too perfect. The second way to look at his prosecution is to think that perhaps, his forethought that by dying he would elevate the study of philosophy. Maybe he was meant to go through this tragedy to justify the "philosophical virtue, truth and justice" (Marrow, 2008) of philosophy. It was an unfortunate tragedy, but I believe that Johnsons reasoning for the justification of his prosecution and subsequent death was justified.

"The unexamined life is not worth living" (Marrow, 2008). This quote by Socrates describes the justification for his very actions. Socrates lived his life studying life, because what would be its purpose if not to improve our morality, our own soul. It seemed that given the time period in which he lived in and the method in which he carried out his philosophy, Athens and Socrates were destined for a tragedy. Johnson provided the strongest evidence for the justification of Socrates' prosecution based on the legal aspect, as well as the society's piece of mind in an effort to survive. It would be morally wrong to discount the impact that Socrates' philosophy has had. He too justified his own prosecution, not because he was guilty of the charges but in the respect that he elevated philosophy to its highest potential. He truly changed our world, even though his own world didn't fully realize it themselves.

The pages that follow the Lesson Plan Template include: student readings (sources) and questions, assignment sheet, model essay and rubric, self-assessment/reflection.

Works Cited

Johnson, S. (2009, June 08). Socrates trial and execution was completely justified, says new study. Retrieved 02 27, 2013, from The Telegraph: <http://www.telegraph.co.uk/news/worldnews/europe/greece/5469193/Socrates-trial-and-execution-was-completely-justified-says-new-study.html>

Marrow, D. (2008, 02 18). The Apology: Socrates Defense. Retrieved 02 27, 2013, from Ancient Greece: http://www.ancientgreece.com/essay/v/the_apology_socrates_defense/

1
2
3
4
5
6
7
8
9
10
11
12
13
14
15
16
17
18
19
20
21
22
23
24
25
26
27
28
29
30
31
32
33
34
35
36
37
38
39
40
41
42
43
44
45
46
47

*Prior Knowledge Lesson

Length of letter has been modified

16 April 1963

"Letter From Birmingham Jail"

MY DEAR FELLOW CLERGYMEN:

While confined here in the Birmingham City Jail, I came across your recent statement calling my present activities "unwise and untimely." Seldom do I pause to answer criticism of my work and ideas. If I sought to answer all the criticisms that cross my desk, my secretaries would have little time for anything other than such correspondence in the course of the day, and I would have no time for constructive work. But since I feel that you are men of genuine goodwill and that your criticisms are sincerely set forth, I want to try to answer your statements in what I hope will be patient and reasonable terms.....

But more basically, I am in Birmingham because injustice is here....

Moreover, I am cognizant of the interrelatedness of all communities and states. I cannot sit idly by in Atlanta and not be concerned about what happens in Birmingham. Injustice anywhere is a threat to justice everywhere.....Whatever affects one directly, affects all indirectly.....Anyone who lives inside the United States can never be considered an outsider anywhere within its bounds....

In any nonviolent campaign there are four basic steps: collection of the facts to determine whether injustices exist; negotiation; self-purification; and direct action. We have gone through all of these steps in Birmingham. There can be no gainsaying the fact that racial injustice engulfs this community. Birmingham is probably the most thoroughly segregated city in the United States. Its ugly record of brutality is widely known. Negroes have experienced grossly unjust treatment in the courts. There have been more unsolved bombings of Negro homes and churches in Birmingham than in any other city in the nation. These are the hard, brutal facts of the case. On the basis of these conditions, Negro leaders sought to negotiate with the city fathers. But the latter consistently refused to engage in good-faith negotiation.

Then, last September, came the opportunity to talk with leaders of Birmingham's economic community. In the course of the negotiations, certain promises were made by the merchants—for example, to remove the stores' humiliating racial signs. On the basis of these promises, the Reverend Fred Shuttlesworth and the leaders of the Alabama Christian Movement for Human Rights agreed to a moratorium on all demonstrations. As the weeks and months went by, we realized that we were the victims of a broken promise. A few signs, briefly removed, returned; the others remained....

....Mindful of the difficulties involved, we decided to undertake a process of self-purification. We began a series of workshops on nonviolence, and we repeatedly asked ourselves: "Are you able to accept blows without retaliating?" "Are you able to endure the ordeal of jail?".....

The pages that follow the Lesson Plan Template include: student readings (sources) and questions, assignment sheet, model essay and rubric, self-assessment/reflection.

48 You may well ask: "Why direct action? Why sit-ins, marches and so forth? Isn't negotiation a better
49 path?" You are quite right in calling for negotiation. Indeed, this is the very purpose of direct action.
50 Nonviolent direct action seeks to create such a crisis and foster such a tension that a community
51 which has constantly refused to negotiate is forced to confront the issue. It seeks to so dramatize the 52 issue that it can no longer be ignored.....
53

54 We know through painful experience that freedom is never voluntarily given by the oppressor; it must 55 be demanded by the oppressed. Frankly, I have yet to engage in a direct-action campaign that was 56 "well timed" in the view of those who have not suffered unduly from the disease of segregation. For 57 years now I have heard the word "Wait!" It rings in the ear of every Negro with piercing familiarity.
58 This "Wait" has almost always meant "Never." We must come to see, with one of our distinguished 59 jurists, that "justice too long delayed is justice denied."...
60

61 We have waited for more than 340 years for our constitutional and God-given rights....
62

63 Perhaps it is easy for those who have never felt the stinging darts of segregation to say, "Wait." But 64 when you have seen vicious mobs lynch your mothers and fathers at will and drown your sisters and 65 brothers at whim; when you have seen hate-filled policemen curse, kick and even kill your black
66 brothers and sisters; when you see the vast majority of your twenty million Negro brothers smothering
67 in an airtight cage of poverty in the midst of an affluent society; when you suddenly find your tongue
68 twisted and your speech stammering as you seek to explain to your six-year-old daughter why she 69 can't go to the public amusement park that has just been advertised on television, and see tears
70 welling up in her eyes when she is told that Funtown is closed to colored children, and see ominous
71 clouds of inferiority beginning to form in her little mental sky, and see her beginning to distort her
72 personality by developing an unconscious bitterness toward white people; when you have to concoct
73 an answer for a five-year-old son who is asking: "Daddy, why do white people treat colored people so 74 mean?"; when you take a cross-country drive and find it necessary to sleep night after night in the 75 uncomfortable corners of your automobile because no motel will accept you.....
76

77 I hope, sirs, you can understand our legitimate and unavoidable impatience....
78

79 You express a great deal of anxiety over our willingness to break laws. This is certainly a legitimate
80 concern. Since we so diligently urge people to obey the Supreme Court's decision of 1954 outlawing 81 segregation in the public schools, at first glance it may seem rather paradoxical for us consciously to 82 break laws. One may well ask: "How can you advocate breaking some laws and obeying others?"
83 The answer lies in the fact that there are two types of laws: just and unjust. I would be the first to 84 advocate obeying just laws. One has not only a legal but a moral responsibility to obey just laws.
85 Conversely, one has a moral responsibility to disobey unjust laws. I would agree with St. Augustine
86 that "an unjust law is no law at all."....
87

88 Now, what is the difference between the two? How does one determine whether a law is just or 89 unjust? A just law is a man-made code that squares with the moral law or the law of God. An unjust
90 law is a code that is out of harmony with the moral law. To put it in the terms of St. Thomas Aquinas:
91 An unjust law is a human law that is not rooted in eternal law and natural law. Any law that uplifts
92 human personality is just. Any law that degrades human personality is unjust. All segregation
93 statutes are unjust because segregation distorts the soul and damages the personality. It gives the 94 segregator a false sense of superiority and the segregated a false sense of inferiority.... Thus it is

95 that I can urge men to obey the 1954 decision of the Supreme Court, for it is morally right; and I can 96 urge them to disobey segregation ordinances, for they are morally wrong....

97
98 Let us consider a more concrete example of just and unjust laws. An unjust law is a code that a
99 numerical or power majority group compels a minority group to obey but does not make binding on 100 itself. This is difference made legal. By the same token, a just law is a code that a majority compels a 101 minority to follow and that it is willing to follow itself. This is sameness made legal.....

102
103
104 Sometimes a law is just on its face and unjust in its application. For instance, I have been arrested on 105 a charge of parading without a permit. Now, there is nothing wrong in having an ordinance which 106 requires a permit for a parade. But such an ordinance becomes unjust when it is used to maintain 107 segregation and to deny citizens the First Amendment privilege of peaceful assembly and protest.

108
109 I hope you are able to see the distinction I am trying to point out. In no sense do I advocate evading
110 or defying the law, as would the rabid segregationist. That would lead to anarchy. One who breaks
111 an unjust law must do so openly, lovingly, and with a willingness to accept the penalty. I submit that 112 an individual who breaks a law that conscience tells him is unjust, and who willingly accepts the 113 penalty of imprisonment in order to arouse the conscience of the community over its injustice, is in 114 reality expressing the highest respect for law....

115
116I have no despair about the future. I have no fear about the outcome of our struggle in Birmingham,
117 even if our motives are at present misunderstood. We will reach the goal of freedom in Birmingham
118 and all over the nation, because the goal of America is freedom. Abused and scorned though we may 119 be, our destiny is tied up with America's destiny. Before the pilgrims landed at Plymouth, we were 120 here. Before the pen of Jefferson etched the majestic words of the Declaration of Independence
121 across the pages of history, we were here. For more than two centuries our forebears labored in this
122 country without wages; they made cotton king; they built the homes of their masters while suffering
123 gross injustice and shameful humiliation—and yet out of a bottomless vitality they continued to thrive
124 and develop. If the inexpressible cruelties of slavery could not stop us, the opposition we now face
125 will surely fail. We will win our freedom because the sacred heritage of our nation and the eternal will 126 of God are embodied in our echoing demands....

127
128 Before closing I feel impelled to mention one other point in your statement that has troubled me
129 profoundly. You warmly commended the Birmingham police force for keeping "order" and 130 "preventing violence." I doubt that you would have so warmly commended the police force if you had 131 seen its dogs sinking their teeth into unarmed, nonviolent Negroes. I doubt that you would so quickly
132 commend the policemen if you were to observe their ugly and inhumane treatment of Negroes here in 133 the city jail; if you were to watch them push and curse old Negro women and young Negro girls; if you
134 were to see them slap and kick old Negro men and young boys; if you were to observe them, as they 135 did on two occasions, refuse to give us food because we wanted to sing our grace together. I cannot 136 join you in your praise of the Birmingham police department....

137
138 I wish you had commended the Negro sit-inners and demonstrators of Birmingham for their sublime
139 courage, their willingness to suffer and their amazing discipline in the midst of great provocation.
140 One day the South will recognize its real heroes. There will be the James Merediths, with the noble
141 sense of purpose that enables them to face jeering and hostile mobs, and with the agonizing
142 loneliness that characterizes the life of the pioneer. There will be the old, oppressed, battered Negro

The pages that follow the Lesson Plan Template include: student readings (sources) and questions, assignment sheet, model essay and rubric, self-assessment/reflection.

143 women, symbolized in a seventy-two-year-old woman in Montgomery, Alabama, who rose up with a 144 sense of dignity and with her people decided not to ride segregated buses, and who responded with 145 ungrammatical profundity to one who inquired about her weariness: "My feets is tired, but my soul is 146 at rest." There will be the young high school and college students, the young ministers of the gospel
147 and a host of their elders, courageously and nonviolently sitting in at lunch counters and willingly
148 going to jail for conscience' sake. One day the South will know that when these disinherited children
149 of God sat down at lunch counters, they were in reality standing up for what is best in the American
150 dream and for the most sacred values in our Judaeo-Christian heritage, thereby bringing our nation
151 back to those great wells of democracy which were dug deep by the founding fathers in their 152 formulation of the Constitution and the Declaration of Independence....

153
154 Never before have I written so long a letter. I'm afraid it is much too long to take your precious time. I
155 can assure you that it would have been much shorter if I had been writing from a comfortable desk,
156 but what else can one do when he is alone in a narrow jail cell, other than write long letters, think long
157 thoughts and pray long prayers?

158
159 Yours for the cause of Peace and Brotherhood,
160 Martin Luther King, Jr.

Name#:

Claims/Evidence: MLK Jr. Worksheet

Date:

Definitions:

Claim: to assert or maintain as a fact: She claimed that he was telling the truth.

Evidence: that which tends to prove or disprove something; ground for belief; proof.

Reasoning: an explanation of how your evidence connects to proving your claim.

You will be able to identify a claim within a text:

1. You will create/formulate a claim.
2. You will list three pieces of evidence to support their claim.
3. You will explain how your evidence proves your claim through reasoning.
4. You will write a 5-7 sentence Summary of your claim and why the evidence you found supports your claim.

Sentence Starters for Reasoning:

This proves... This highlights...
This shows... This illuminates...
This demonstrates...

Please State the Authors' Claim: _____

Evidence 1: _____

Reasoning 1: _____

Evidence 2: _____

Reasoning 2: _____

Evidence 3: _____

Reasoning 3: _____

Summary: _____

Discussion Questions: Please Restate, Answer and Explain using evidence from the text (quote or paraphrase) On Another Sheet of Paper, please answer the following discussion questions

1. Explain what MLK Jr. meant by “Whatever affects one directly, affects all indirectly”? Line# 20-21
2. Were MLK Jr.’s First Amendment rights violated? Explain.
3. Describe the most memorable quote from the letter. Explain
4. Explain MLK Jr’s outlook of the future. Starting Line# 125
5. Explain your definition of a just and unjust law.

The Apology: Socrates' Defense

by Daniel Marrow

The Apology

1
2 At the trial for his life in 399 BC, Socrates defense is recounted in Plato's Apology.
3 Here Socrates appeared, despite his lengthy defense, not to acquit himself from all
4 accusations, but rather to deliberately ensure that he would be found guilty and thus
5 condemned to death. If Socrates believed his moral purpose was to achieve 6 philosophical virtue, justice and truth by examining life to its fullest, why then would 7 he willingly give his life on the charges of crimes that he did not commit?
8

9 The answer lies in Socrates realization that taking the right course of action is more
10 important than one that will save him. For he states: "Someone will say: And are you
11 not ashamed, Socrates, of a course of life which is likely to bring you to an untimely 12 end? To him I may fairly answer: There you are mistaken: a man who is good for 13 anything ought not to calculate the chance of living or dying; he ought only to 14 consider whether in doing anything he is doing right or wrong - acting the part of a 15 good man or of a bad" This is Socrates most cherished principle, that in dying for his 16 beliefs he would be choosing the most noble action and not the most obvious.
17

18 Throughout the Apology, Socrates puts forward his views of wisdom, virtue, and 19 nobility he believes to be moral truths, not to clear his name, but to reveal the 20 ignorance of his prosecutors, judges, and fellow citizens. Against the charges of 21 corrupting the youth, atheism, and introducing new deities,

22
23 Socrates states that has been doing Athens a service by improving its beliefs of 24 wisdom and virtue. "He [Socrates] regarded the charges as wholly unjustified; he 25 claimed to reform and improve both his own moral outlook and other people's. He 26 devoted his life to cross-examining other people about virtue; he urged them to pay
27 attention to their souls... not to wealth, power and other external advantages."
28 Socrates states that this was his true purpose, for "The unexamined life is not worth 29 living." Later on in the trial Socrates remains steadfast on his views and refuses to 30 give up his philosophical pursuit, even if it costs him his life. He tells the jury,
31 "Therefore if you let me go now... and say to me: Socrates, this time we will not mind
32 Anytus [a prosecutor], and will let you off, but upon one condition, that you are not 33 to inquire and speculate in this way any more, and that if you are caught doing this 34 again you shall die; - if this was the condition on which you let me go, I should reply:
35 Men of Athens, I honor and love you; but I shall obey God rather than you, and while I
36 have life and strength I shall never cease from the practice and teaching of 37 philosophy..."

38 Socrates died for a noble cause: the belief that one should never change their beliefs
39 because of their fear of death. He chose to give up his life as an example for 40 generations after as he declares to the jury, "Wherefore, O men of Athens, I say to 41 you, do as Anytus bids or not as Anytus bids, and either acquit me or not; but 42 whatever you do know that I shall never alter my ways, not even if I have to die many 43 times"

Question: Was the prosecution of Socrates Just or Unjust?

Directions: Please circle words or phrases that answer the question. Also give each paragraph a title/main idea.

Use this Space for Notes

3- find himself not guilty
6- study of beliefs which are morally right

15-most important belief

21- teaching to be dishonest; gods

25- teaching right behavior

29-firm

The pages that follow the Lesson Plan Template include: student readings (sources) and questions, assignment sheet, model essay and rubric, self-assessment/reflection.

44
45 This is why Socrates meant to be prosecuted, he was not afraid of death, and believed 46 if he died for a noble cause it was justified. However, once accused, Socrates does not 47 escape from prison and later, execution, for: "Socrates is confident that justice and 48 morality are always in our interest. He insists that a just person will allow nothing to 49 count against doing the just action, no matter what the cost may be. If Socrates were 50 to choose an ordinary good over the just course of action he would be choosing an 51 action that is bad for him, and he refuses to do this; this is why he refuses to propose 52 an alternative to the death penalty."

53
54 Thus, Socrates chooses to accept his fate and, doing so, secures his place as "the 55 greatest hero in the history of philosophy." Socrates' primary concern in life was arete
56 `excellence', not in the Sophistic sense of practical efficiency in public life, but as moral 57 excellence of soul, that is, virtue. This belief sets the foundations for ethics and 58 philosophy, that Socrates died, not in vain, but for that which he most valued: the 59 pursuit of virtue.

Article Summary

The authors' claim/main idea of this passage is: (write a complete sentence)

The evidence the authors use to support their claim is:

Evidence A: _____

Evidence B: _____

Evidence C: _____

Evidence D: _____

Evidence E: _____

This evidence demonstrates that: (Restate the Claim with your answer and Reasoning)

Socrates Trial and Execution was Completely Justified, Says New Study

By Simon Johnson

1
2 Through the centuries, historians have portrayed the 399BC trial as a travesty, with Socrates
3 forced to face charges invented by his ignorant fellow citizens.
4

5
6 He was found guilty of "impiety" and "corrupting the young", sentenced to death, and then
7 required to carry out his own execution by consuming a deadly potion of the poisonous plant
8 hemlock.
9

10
11 But, in a new study launched today, Professor Paul Cartledge has concluded that the trial was 12 legally just and Socrates was guilty as charged.

13 Prof Cartledge said: "Everyone knows that the Greeks invented democracy, but it was not
14 democracy as we know it, and we have misread history as a result
15 "The charges Socrates faced seem ridiculous to us, but in Ancient Athens they were genuinely 16 felt to serve the communal good."
17

18
19 Historians have traditionally claimed that Socrates' open criticism of prominent Athenian 20 politicians had made him many enemies, who used the trial to get rid of him.
21

22
23 Socrates was made a scapegoat for a series of disasters to strike Athens, including a plague
24 and major military defeat, it has been claimed.
25

26
27 But Prof Cartledge pointed out that many citizens would have seen these events as a sign that 28 their gods had been offended by undesirable elements.

29 He argued that Socrates, who had questioned the legitimacy and authority of many deities,
30 fitted the latter description.

31 With the gods clearly furious and more disasters perhaps just around the corner, Prof
32 Cartledge said that a charge of impiety was seen not only as appropriate, but in the public 33 interest.
34

35
36 The professor's study also concluded that Socrates essentially invited his own death. Under 37 the Athenian system, in this kind of trial a defendant could suggest his own penalty.
38

39 Socrates first joked that he should be rewarded, and eventually suggested a small fine but his 40 jurors did not see the funny side and passed the death sentence.

41 "By removing him, society had in, Athenians' eyes, been cleansed and reaffirmed," Prof
42 Cartledge concluded.
43
44

Question: Was the prosecution of Socrates Just or Unjust?

Directions: Please circle words or phrases that answer the question. Also give each paragraph a title/main idea.

Use this Space for Notes

2- A false, absurd, or distorted representation of something

6- lacking in proper respect (as for God or one's parents)

16- Of, belonging to, or shared by the people of a community; public.

19- widely known

27- a person made to bear the blame for others

Article Summary

The authors' claim/main idea of this passage is: (write a complete sentence)

The evidence the authors use to support their claim is:

Evidence A: _____

Evidence B: _____

Evidence C: _____

Evidence D: _____

Evidence E: _____

This evidence demonstrates that: (Restate the Claim with your answer and Reasoning)

Argumentative Writing Rubric

Component	Possible Score			Student	Teacher
	0	3	5	Score	Score
Claim State the authors claim from the article.	Does not make a claim, or makes an inaccurate claim.	Makes an accurate but incomplete claim.	Makes an accurate and complete claim for the article.
Evidence The evidence needs to be appropriate and sufficient to support the claim.	Does not provide evidence, or only provides opinion that does not support claim.	Provides appropriate, but insufficient evidence to support claim. May include some inappropriate evidence.	Provides appropriate and sufficient evidence to support claim.
Reasoning An explanation that connects the evidence to the claim. It shows why the evidence counts as evidence by using appropriate and complete explanation.	Does not provide reasoning, or only provides reasoning that does not link evidence to the claim.	Provides reasoning that links the claim and evidence, but not completely explained.	Provides reasoning that links evidence to claim. Includes appropriate and sufficient explanation.
Counter- Claim Recognizes and describes alternative claim, and provides counter evidence and reasoning for why the alternative explanation is not appropriate.	Does not recognize that a counter claim exists and does not provide reasoning.	Recognizes a counter claim and provides appropriate but insufficient counter evidence and reasoning.	Recognizes a counter claim and provides appropriate and sufficient counter evidence and reasoning.
			Final Total

The pages that follow the Lesson Plan Template include: student readings (sources) and questions, assignment sheet, model essay and rubric, self-assessment/reflection.

Argumentative Writing

Directions: Write an argumentative essay based on the following writing prompt: Based on the two different viewpoints on the Trial of Socrates please state and explain using evidence and reasoning the claim you feel is strongest and state the counter claim and its evidence with reasoning.

Comments: